CASE IN POINT

A HUMAN TRAFFICKING INVESTIGATION

April 14, 2015
9:00am-5:00pm

Virginia Public Safety Training Center
7093 Broad Neck Road
Hanover, VA 23069
Lunch provided

Training Format:

In this highly interactive training, attendees will learn how to recognize the warning signs of a child being exploited in commercial sex, and how a such a child may come in contact with the juvenile justice system.

This exercise will present professionals working in juvenile justice with the opportunity to work through a mock case study, challenging participants to identify the proper response and dispositional alternatives available to a child exploited in commercial sex. After instructional sessions, attendees will break into teams to develop creative solutions to problems presented by the scenario.

The training will conclude with lessons learned and best practices as developed in the work groups for attendees to take back to their respective agencies for further development and implementation.

Presenters:

Erin Kulpa, Assistant US Attorney & Community Outreach Coordinator, Western District of Virginia
